Cut trade ties or face 25% tariff 'bomb': Trump to Iran trade partners

WASHINGTON

US President Donald Trump on Tuesday announced that any country "doing business" with Iran will have to pay a 25 per cent tariff on its trade with Washington, a move that could impact Tehran's major trading partners such as India, China and the UAE.

"Effective immediately, any Country doing business with the Islamic Republic of Iran will pay a Tariff of 25 per cent on any and all business being done with the United States of America. This Order is final and conclusive," Trump said.

Among Iran's major trading partners are China, Turkey, India, the UAE, Pakistan and Armenia.

The announcement by Trump could impact India, which has been among Iran's five largest trade partners in recent years.

The US has already imposed 50 per cent tariffs on India, among the highest in the world, including 25 per cent for Delhi's purchases of Russian energy.

According to the Indian Embassy in Tehran, major Indian exports to Iran include rice, tea, sugar, pharmaceuticals, manmade staple fibres, electrical machinery and artificial jewellery, while major Indian imports from Iran consist of dry fruits, inorganic/organic chemicals and, glassware.

According to the Observatory of Economic Complexity (OEC), an online data visualisation and distribution platform, exports from India to Iran in 2023 totalled 1.19 billion dollars, while imports into India totalled 1.02 billion dollars.

During 2023, the top exports from India to Iran were rice (USD 734M), Soybean Meal (USD 96.8M), and Bananas (USD 52M). Top exports from Iran to India included Acyclic alcohol derivatives (halogenated, sulphonated, nitrated) (USD 309M).

"India and Iran share a millennia-long history of interactions. The contemporary and relationship draws upon the strength of these historical and civilisational ties, and continues to grow further marked by high-level exchanges, commercial and connectivity cooperation, cultural and robust people-to-people ties," the Indian Embassy in Tehran has said.

A key aspect of India-Iran ties is the joint development of the Chabahar port. Located in the Sistan-Balochistan province on the energy-rich Iran's southern coast, the Chabahar port is being developed by India and Iran to boost connectivity and trade ties.

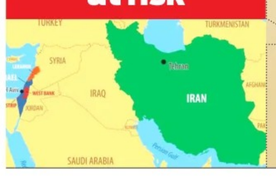
2,000 killed in Iran after crackdown on anti-govt protests

Dubai: About 2,000 people, including security personnel, are feared killed after a crackdown on anti-government protests in Iran. Quoting an Iranian security official, a news agency reported that the death toll could be around 2,000 people. This is the first time an official has acknowledged the high death toll in the nationwide unrest.

Iran prepared for any action by US: Min

Meanwhile, Iranian foreign minister Abbas Araghchi has said that Iran is prepared for any action by the US as President Donald Trump weighs his options for intervention. Araghchi said Iran's readiness is much greater than it was when the US conducted military strikes on Iran in June last year.

Countries at risk



China remains Iran's top trade partner

China is Iran's largest trading partner. Iranian exports to China totalled $22 billion in 2022, with fuels accounting for more than half of that amount, as per an agency report, citing World Bank data. Imports from China stood at $15 billion. In 2025, China bought more than 80% of Iran's shipped oil.

India's trade with Iran remains modest

India's total bilateral trade with Iran reached $1.34 billion during the first 10 months of 2025, agencies reported citing India's commerce ministry. Major Indian exports to Iran include basmati rice, fruits, vegetables, drugs and other pharmaceutical products.

Turkey maintains strong trade ties with Iran

Iran's exports to Turkey amounted to $5.8 billion in 2022, while imports from Turkey reached $6.1 billion, Reuters reported, citing World Bank figures.

Germany's imports from Iran exceeds its exports

Trade between Iran and Germany remains uneven. Iran exported $178 million worth of goods to Germany in 2022, while imports from Germany totalled $1.9 billion.

Govt pulls brakes on '10-minute delivery'

The scrapping of 10-minute deadline marks a significant shift for the country's booming quick-commerce sector

NEW DELHI

The Centre has directed leading quick commerce and food delivery platforms, including Blinkit, Zepto and Swiggy Instamart, to stop mandating and promoting 10-minute delivery timelines.

The move follos discussions held with the Union Labour Ministry amid growing concerns over the impact of aggressive delivery targets on gig workers.

'10 minute' goes off from Blinkit tagline

Following the order, Eternal-owned Blinkit has already acted on the directive and removed its long-promoted "10 minute delivery" claim from its branding and communication. The company has revised the principal tagline from "10,000+ products delivered in 10 minutes" to "30,000+ products delivered at your doorstep," signalling a shift away from time-bound delivery branding.Other companies like Zepto, Zomato and Swiggy are expected to follow suit soon, the sources said.

Recently, the 10-minute quick delivery promise led to a nationwide gig workers' strike on New Year's Eve 2025, drawing the Centre's attention to issues related to delivery workers' health, safety and income. "Following a series of sustained interventions, Union Labour Minister Mansukh Mandaviya has persuaded major delivery aggregators to remove the 10-minute delivery deadline," labour ministry sources said.

The minister recently held meetings with leading platforms, including Blinkit, Zepto, Zomato and Swiggy, to address concerns related to delivery timelines.

Officials said the move is intended to ensure greater safety, security, and improved working conditions for gig and platform workers.

'Much needed step': Chadha thanks Centre

AAP MP Raghav Chadha on Tuesday welcomed the removal of the "10-minute delivery" branding by quick-commerce platform Blinkit, calling it a collective victory for delivery riders' safety and dignity. He thanked the Central Government for what he described as a timely, decisive and compassionate intervention that led to the change. In a post on X shared after the move, Chadha said, "Satyamev Jayate. Together, we have won." "I am deeply grateful to the Central Government for its timely, decisive and compassionate intervention in enforcing the removal of the '10-minute delivery' branding from quick-commerce platforms," he said. Chadha argued that such branding creates real and constant pressure on delivery workers.

'Empowered to examine citizenship for electoral purposes'

NEW DELHI

The Election Commission told the Supreme Court on Tuesday that it acts as the original authority on issues concerning electoral rolls and the conduct of elections, and that its opinion is binding on the President when a person acquires citizenship of another country.

The panel submitted that an adverse finding during the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) would "not ipso facto result in deportation" but lead to the exclusion of a person's name from the electoral roll. It said that the matter could be referred to the Centre for scrutiny and possible action under the Citizenship Act and related laws.

'For every stray dog bite, death, you pay': SC to states, feeders

NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Tuesday warned the Union and state governments that they could be made to pay heavy compensation for every victim of dog bites and fatalities if authorities continue to fail in implementing the Animal Birth Control (ABC) rules.

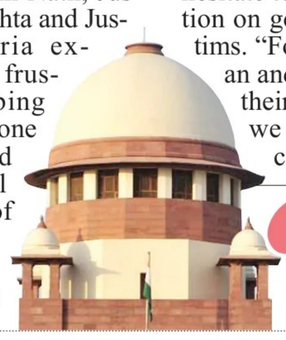
Hearing a clutch of petitions on the issue, the bench of Justice Vikram Nath, Justice Sandeep Mehta and Justice NV Anjaria expressed visible frustration, describing the situation as one that has spiralled out of control due to decades of official apathy.

"This issue has been going on forever," the bench said, pointing out that Parliament had been seized of the problem since the 1950s. "It is because of Central and the state governments that the problem has multiplied a thousand times. There is complete failure on the part of the authorities."

In one of the sharpest warnings from the top court so far, the bench said it would not hesitate to impose compensation on governments for victims. "For every man, woman and child who has lost their lives to a dog bite, we will impose heavy compensation on the government responsible," the judges cautioned.

Turning its attention to dog feeders, the bench made it clear that compassion could not be divorced from responsibility. "And, also liability to dog feeders," the court said bluntly. "You take them to your house, keep them. Why should they be allowed to roam around, biting and chasing people? The effect of a dog bite is lifelong."

The top court heard arguments of several lawyers in the suo motu case related to the stray dog issue and posted the matter for further hearing on January 20.



It is because of Central and the state governments that the problem has multiplied a thousand times. There is complete failure on the part of the authorities.

Gandhiji murdered again through VB-G RAM G: CM

BENGALURU

Chief Minister Siddaramaiah on Tuesday reiterated his commitment to continue the struggle until the MGNREGA is reinstated and VB-G RAM G is repealed.

Addressing the Mahatma Gandhi Udyog Khatri Yojana Bachao Sangram Purva Siddat Sambhava organised by the KPCC at Gayatri Vihar on Tuesday, he stressed the need to make the 'NREGA Bachao Andolan' a people's movement.

He further said in rural areas, one could ask for work for 365 days. People could work in their own village, on their own land. To change this, the Modi government brought in the VB-G RAM G Act. "This is not Dasharatha Ram, Sita Ram or Kaushalya Ram. This is Nathuram, who killed Mahatma Gandhi. Gandhiji has been murdered again through VBG Ram Ji," he alleged.

'BJP-EC NEXUS'

'EC used BJP-devised AI tools'

KOLKOTA

West Bengal chief minister Mamata Banerjee on Tuesday alleged that the Election Commission (EC) had deleted 54 lakh names from the draft electoral rolls during the ongoing Special Intensive Revision (SIR) in the state, without giving voters an opportunity to defend themselves.

Addressing a press conference at the state secretariat Nabanna, Banerjee claimed that the deletions were carried out by misusing the powers of electoral registration officers (EROs) and largely affected what she described as "genuine electors."

'Those whose names were removed were not even informed about the grounds for deletion, leaving them no chance to respond'.
—Mamata Banerjee, West Bengal chief minister

According to her, a significant number of the deleted entries belonged to legitimate voters who were wrongfully excluded during the SIR process.

Banerjee further alleged that those whose names were removed were not even informed about the grounds for deletion, leaving them no chance to respond or contest the decision.

Allegation of AI misuse

"The EC, while sitting in Delhi, used AI tools devised by the BJP to delete names. These AI software accounted for the names mismatch in SIR data. They deleted names of women who changed surnames post marriage," Banerjee told reporters.

Greater Mysuru City Corporation: A Great Idea

BHAMY V. SHENOY

As Mysureans discuss and argue whether forming a Greater Mysuru City Corporation (GMCC) by increasing the coverage from 86.3 sq.km to 341.4 sq.km, it is natural to have different views. In democracy it is a healthy practice to have an informed debate on such a strategically critical topic. Implementing this policy of the government will have a far reaching impact on future generations and the development of Mysuru.

From my experience of working in and around Mysuru, I welcome this idea for several reasons. The GMCC consists of all the present 65 wards, the the City Municipal Council (CMC) of Hootagalli; the Town Panchayats of Srirampura, Rammanahalli, Kadakola and Bogadi; the entire Chamundi Hill Gram Panchayat area; Alanahalli and Lalithadripura villages of Alanahalli Gram Panchayat; Siddalingapura, Belavatha, Kesare and Metagalli villages of Siddalingapura Gram Panchayat.

In addition, it will comprise Yelwal, Karakanahalli, Maidanahalli and Megalapura villages of Yelwal Gram Panchayat; Dhanagalli, Yadahalli, Kenchalagoodu, Halalu and Chowdahalli (Kotehundi) villages of Dhanagalli Gram Panchayat; Mallahalli-Beerihundi, Gohalli, Kumarabeedu and Ballahalli villages of Mallahalli (Beerihundi) Gram Panchayat; Shyadanahalli village of Nagawala Gram Panchayat; and Nagawala, Bommanahalli and Huyilalu villages of Nagawala Gram Panchayat.

Above listing is given not to impress how rapidly GMCC will expand and also the population. It is true that the area will increase four fold. However, the population increase is only about 20%. However the complexity of closing down so many panchayats and enormous change it will bring about in the careers of several people cannot be underestimated. The task is enormous. We need a top class officer to preside over such a historic project. It is but natural to doubt the ability of the government in selecting a top administrator. Our natural instinct is to oppose the project from such practical consideration. I have heard that already there are attempts made to influence town planners to draw maps to meet the requirements of some influential political leaders.

However, assuming, we can indeed be fortunate in getting the services of a top administrator and an equally efficient team of experts to work with him, long term benefits are enormous. By having a world class master plan by a competent consulting firm (not the kind we had earlier) we can avoid Mysuru going the way of Bengaluru.

Population of Mysuru is bound to increase. Already the infrastructure like sewage handling system, water supply, traffic, schools meeting all the specified needs are at breaking point.

The GMCC will allow us to plan the development of future transportation needs, sewage system, garbage handling, providing land for new industries, power needs, 24 X 7 water supply in a more streamlined and scientific manner.

Unplanned and unscientific development of Chamundi Hills should convince the need to bring its panchayat under GMCC. In fact, there is a total jungle raj on the hill. MGP has formally complained to DC in the past. Chamundi Hill has reached its carrying capacity - water has to be pumped from below supplied by MCC, garbage is not properly handled, top of the hill has become a parking lot around the temple. Recent construction of buildings on the hill do not have permits from the panchayat. But there is no action taken against them. Formation of GMCC under efficient administration can not only bring such illegal construction to an end, but even start demolishing such illegal structures. The same story is true in many several gram panchayats.

While the government is implementing the policy of forming GMCC, to keep with the spirit of 74th amendment, it should bring MDA under its control. Simultaneously GMCC should take up the formation of ward committees for better governance. Performance of the government irrespective of which political parties are in control, such decentralization mandated by the 74th amendment has not been satisfactory at all. It is because of such reasonable doubts there is opposition to GMCC.

In short, if the government can promise "good governance" as suggested above, GMCC will be a boon to Mysuru and we can continue to enjoy the old charm of Mysuru - a gift to us by Wadiyars.

HUNSUR

S. E. Sudheendra, Chairman of the Karnataka Bio Energy Development Board, and Ayub Khan, Chairman of the Karnataka Exhibition Authority, visited Billena Hosahalli Haadi of Neralakuppe in the taluk to inspect a solar energy and bio-energy micro-grid unit.

Later, while speaking to reporters, Prof. Sham Sundar of Mysuru NIE College explained the installation and maintenance of the micro-grid unit. This facility was made possible by the Ashraya Hasta Trust. BJP MLA Srivatsa files complaint against KPCC Spokesperson Lakshman

Mysuru Krishnaraja Constituency MLA T. S. Srivatsa has submitted a complaint to Director General and Inspector General of Police Dr. M. A. Saleem, urging action against Congress spokesperson M. Lakshman for making false statements that incite public mischief and for spreading misinformation to provoke unrest and hatred among the public.

In the complaint, he stated that on January 8, KPCC spokesperson M. Lakshman held a press conference at the Congress Bhavan in Mysuru, during which he made serious allegations such as: "Due to the instigation of Union Minister Amit Shah, violence occurred in Ballari and Congress workers lost their lives. If Union Minister V. Somanna, who carried Amit Shah's message, is subjected to brain mapping, the conspiracy will be exposed. After V. Somanna visited Ballari and held discussions with MLA Janardhana Reddy and former minister Sriramulu, the violence took place. Holding press meets and making useless statements serves no purpose. Amit Shah conveyed a message through V. Somanna to Janardhana Reddy and Sriramulu to let a dead body fall and then do politics over it," and other such grave accusations.

Srivatsa said the KPCC spokesperson in his statements, directly named Amit Shah and V. Somanna and used extremely serious and provocative expressions such as "a dead body must fall and politics must be done over it," without any documents, evidence, or reasonable basis. This, the petition states, is a matter of extreme seriousness. Such false statements are capable of creating fear, anxiety, and unrest among the public. It is condemnable that an official spokesperson of the ruling party should spread false allegations against Union Ministers and provoke the people.

The petition further states that Lakshman repeatedly makes baseless allegations before the public and various media outlets, uses abusive language, and spreads misinformation.

"Technological Innovations Make Cardiac Surgery Simpler"

MYSURU

With the adoption of advanced technology, nearly 50 percent of cardiac surgeries can now be managed in a much simpler manner and with less burden on patients, using alternatives to traditional open-heart surgery, said Dr. B. Dinesh, Director of the Jayadeva Institute of Cardiology and Research.

Speaking after inaugurating a symposium on Mysuru Valve 2.0, organised by the Mysuru chapter of the Cardiology Society of India in Mysuru, he said as science and technology advance, minimally invasive cardiac surgery techniques are increasingly being adopted. These have proven especially beneficial for trans catheter valve replacement procedures. Such technologies enable surgeries to be performed through small incisions, significantly reducing pain, blood loss, recovery time, and the duration of hospital stay. In addition, the recent use of artificial intelligence has been extremely helpful in pre-surgical planning, patient risk assessment, decision-making during surgery, and predicting post-operative outcomes. Dr Dinesh said it is due to modern technologies that today's complex cardiac surgeries—such as valve replacement, bypass surgery, and correction of congenital defects—have become so successful. Therefore, technology has evolved from being merely supportive to becoming an essential component of cardiac surgery.

Later, Dr. M. Jayaranganath provided important tips and guidance on catheter-based pulmonary valve surgery.

Experts from various parts of the country, including Bengaluru, Chennai, Calicut, Coimbatore, and Delhi, participated in the programme and shared their experiences and expertise. Senior interventional cardiologist and structural heart specialist Dr. Anantharaman from Cauvery Hospital, Chennai; cardiologist Dr. Veena Nanjappa from Jayadeva Hospital; consultant cardiologist Dr. Shashirekha from Manipal Hospital; senior cardiologist Dr. R. Keshava; and others were present.

RTO Launches Multi-Pronged Action Plan to Curb road mishaps

MYSURU

Marking January as Road Safety Month, the Regional Transport Office (RTO), Mysuru, has rolled out an intensive action plan aimed at reducing road accidents, improving enforcement, and strengthening citizen-centric transport services.

Addressing a press conference, Road Transport Officer Vasanth Chauhan said road accidents continue to be a serious concern in Karnataka and Mysuru district in particular. Across Karnataka, more than 28,000 deaths and injuries were reported due to road accidents last year. Mysuru district has consistently figured among the top ten accident-prone districts over the past five years. In 2023 alone, the district recorded over 170 fatalities. Recognising the gravity of the situation, the Supreme Court Committee Chairman has declared Mysuru an accident-prone district and recently visited the city to offer guidance on remedial measures.

Mysuru in top ten accident-prone districts

Black Spots Identified

He said To tackle accident hotspots, an action plan has been prepared under the leadership of the Deputy Commissioner. The RTO has identified accident-prone "black spots"—500-metre stretches recording more than five deaths or injuries and over ten accidents. Currently, 17 black spots on National Highways and three under the Public Works Department are pending for rectification. Coordinated efforts are underway with all stakeholder departments to eliminate these danger zones.

Chauhan said as part of Road Safety Month activities, the Transport Department is conducting awareness programmes in schools and colleges, focusing on youth aged 25–40 years, the most vulnerable group in road accidents. Key issues highlighted include overspeeding, drunk driving, failure to wear helmets, and distracted driving due to mobile phones and Bluetooth devices.

Special programmes are also being held in collaboration with KSRTC, including free eye camps for drivers, blood tests, blood donation drives, first-aid training, and awareness on the "golden hour" concept in accident response.

The RTO highlighted that over 26 transport services are now available online, allowing citizens to apply without middlemen. Learner's Licences (LL) can be obtained entirely online without visiting the office. Driving Licences (DL) are issued only after passing tests on automated, sensor-based driving tracks, ensuring transparency and skill-based licensing. New automated driving tracks are being established across districts, including a recently inaugurated facility in Vijayapura.

Centralised Card Printing & Timely Delivery

He said RC and DL cards are now printed centrally at the Transport Department head office and delivered via courier. While there was a temporary delay due to a tender transition, the RTO assured that around 8,000 pending cards will be delivered within 15 days. New cards are expected to reach applicants within 24–48 hours from printing.

An automated fitness testing centre is operational for vehicles over 15 years, eliminating human intervention. Temporary arrangements are in place with Mandya RTO until software upgrades are completed. Additionally, special inspections of sleeper buses are underway following recent highway accidents. Notices have been issued to over 10 buses for safety violations including fire detection systems, emergency exits, and fitness requirements.

So far, 2,325 traffic violation cases have been registered, achieving 85% of the annual enforcement target. Violations include lack of insurance, fitness certificates, pollution certificates, and improper number plates. With a strong mix of technology, enforcement, awareness, and transparency, the Mysuru RTO aims to significantly reduce accidents and make road travel safer for all, Chauhan said.

Clean City, Healthy Citizens - A Salute to Sanitation Warriors

MYSURU

"You are the real heroes of Mysuru"

"You are the real heroes. If Mysuru is clean, it is because of you. If the people are healthy, it is because of you."

With these powerful words, the Mysuru City Corporation paid rich tribute to its dedicated sanitation workers during a one-day special capacity-building workshop organised under the Central Government's Swachh Bharat Mission 2.0 at the SIUD campus on Tuesday.

Mysuru has proudly secured third place in national cleanliness rankings, next only to Indore, and the entire credit goes to the tireless efforts of sanitation workers. Despite limited public awareness about proper waste management, these frontline warriors work relentlessly every single day—making a full-day workshop like this both timely and meaningful.

Addressing the gathering, Regional Commissioner Nitesh Patil said no amount of appreciation is enough for the hard work put in by sanitation staff. High-quality shoes, gloves, uniforms, and elegant sarees are being provided to ensure safety, comfort, and dignity at work."There is no shortage of funds," he assured, adding that the MCC is committed to the welfare of Pourakarmikas.

Patil said in a major boost to worker welfare, plans are underway to provide: gyms for Safai Karmacharis, badminton courts, community and party halls and fully equipped Pourakarmika colonies. The MCC must not only look after the demands of the safai karmacharis but also of their dependents. Clear action-plan instructions have already been issued, with full cooperation from elected representatives. The Mysuru City Corporation has pledged complete care and responsibility for its sanitation workforce. As they safeguard the health of citizens, it is their duty to protect their health too. Plans for one-to-one interactions, extended engagement, and direct feedback from sanitation workers are in the pipeline. Their suggestions will help drive administrative reforms and push Mysuru to even higher cleanliness rankings.

Disciplined soldiers

MLC C. S. Manjegowda, recalling his days as a soldier, urged sanitation workers to embrace discipline, prioritise health, and ensure quality education for their children—shaping them into responsible citizens of tomorrow.

State Urban Development Institute Director Asad Ur Rehman Sharif highlighted the critical role of sanitation workers in urban cleanliness and advised them to care equally for their future and well-being.

The programme was attended by senior officials including: Dr. Venkatesh – Health Officer, MCC, Srinivas – Executive Engineer (West Division), Ramesh – Zonal Commissioner (Zone-01), Manjunath Reddy – Zonal Commissioner (Zone-05), Meenakshi – Assistant Executive Engineer, Kulkarni – Founder & Senior Consultant, Bhageeratha Institution, Kiran – Regional Director, AIILSG, Jitendra – Senior Consultant, Environmental engineers, assistant executive engineers, and health inspectors.

As part of a special field visit, over 90 officers and staff from Hubballi–Dharwad and Ballari City Corporations visited Mysuru to study its best practices in solid waste management, reaffirming the city's position as a national role model. Manja thread being used in city despite the ban

The state government had banned the use of manja string in 2016, following the daily increase in bird deaths due to kite flying using this string

BENGALURU

Despite the state government banning the use of manja thread or Chinese thread used for kite flying, it is being sold in the market without any eggs. This Chinese thread is not only harmful to birds but also to humans.

There are three days left for the Sankranti festival, one of the folk festivals of the country. Kite festivals are common during these festivals. We need to keep an eye on those who use manja thread under the pretext of festivals. The use of manja thread has become a thorn in the side of various birds including eagles, crows, and jays. It is a thorn not only for birds but also for humans.

In 2016, the state government had banned the use of manja thread in the wake of the increasing number of bird deaths due to kite flying using it. In 2018, the NGT had also banned the use of manja thread. Not only Karnataka, but also the states of Chandigarh, Delhi, Goa, Haryana, Himachal Pradesh, Maharashtra, Punjab, Telangana and Tripura had banned manja thread and issued orders. However, despite the orders, it is being sold in the city's black market.

GBA continues to receive calls every day about birds getting stuck in the manja thread. The fire department and some animal welfare organizations are engaging in rescue operations based on the information received from the calls.

Manja and all its forms pose a risk to humans, birds, other animals and the environment. Manja is a chemical coating applied to a thread made of nylon or cotton threads, usually coated with glass or metal powder. This not only makes the thread stronger but also gives it the ability to cut any object it comes into contact with. Although it helps in cutting each other's threads in kite competitions, in most cases, birds flying in the sky are more at risk from such manja threads.

Cultural Initiative Advances Construction of Balaji Temple

BENGALURU

The Shri Salasar Balaji Seva Samiti is advancing the construction of the Shri Salasar Balaji (Hanuman) Temple in Bengaluru, a shrine envisioned as a spiritual bridge between Ayodhya and Kishkindha, two sacred geographies central to the Ramayana. A cultural fundraising initiative held on Sunday at the Prestige Centre for Performing Arts, Kanakapura Road, marked a key milestone in this journey.

The event forms part of a multi-city outreach programme supporting the construction of the temple at Ranka Colony, Bannerghatta Road.

The temple is devoted to Shri Salasar Balaji, a revered manifestation of Lord Hanuman, uniquely depicted with a beard and moustache, a form rarely represented in South India. Rooted in the spiritual lineage of Salasar Dham in Rajasthan, the temple seeks to extend this distinct tradition of devotion to the southern region.

Pramod Murarka, President of Shri Salasar Balaji Seva Samiti, said, the construction of this temple is a collective expression of faith and service. We invite devotees to participate through devotion, time, and contributions to help bring this spiritual mission to completion.

Sanjay Shah, Chairperson of the Temple Construction Committee, added, the work is progressing with dedication and care. With continued support, the temple will stand as a centre of devotion and spiritual inspiration for generations.

Reflecting on the initiative, Dr. Nitish Bharadwaj said, through Chakravyuh, we are contributing to a cause that carries enduring cultural and spiritual significance. It is art in service of a larger dharmic vision.

Addressing the gathering after inaugurating the play, Minister Ramalinga Reddy said, Karnataka is home to around 1.8 lakh temples, with approximately 34,000 under the state government. Among the most famous are Kukke Subramanya, which attracts nearly 1 crore devotees, and the Renuka Yellamma Temple in Belaghavigaum. Just as these temples are renowned, I hope Shri Salasar Balaji Temple becomes equally popular and successful. The construction of Shri Salasar Balaji Temple is currently underway in BTM Layout and today, a beautiful drama titled Chakravyuha is being performed to raise funds for it. I hope the drama is a great success and that the temple construction is completed soon.

BENGALURU

The arrested persons are Jahidul Islam (35) and Firodes (32). They had been residing in Hebbagodi area two years ago. Police interrogation revealed that the accused had entered India through West Bengal and had settled in Bangalore. Police said that these illegal residents, who were working as laborers in a building under construction, were selling plastic items in the city.

A total of six FIRs have been registered in the last week under the jurisdiction of Hebbagodi police station regarding illegal bungalow residents involved in the illegal drug trade. The police have launched an investigation after suspecting the presence of more than 15 illegal residents.

HC denies bail to B'deshi accused of human trafficking

BENGALURU

The High Court refused to grant bail to a Bangladeshi national who was arrested on charges of human trafficking after traveling to Bangladesh five times using a passport obtained by submitting a fake Aadhaar card.

The order was passed by a bench of Justices HP Sandesh and Venkatesh Naik, who were hearing a criminal appeal filed by Amol Chandra Das alias Sujeeb, a Bangladeshi national currently residing in Assam, challenging the order of the NIA special court dismissing his bail application.

Also, the criminal appeal petitioner is a citizen of Bangladesh and according to the records, it will be revealed that he had prepared documents regarding Aadhaar card on the same day in Karnataka and Assam. Also, if the Aadhaar card is checked, it will be revealed that he had obtained Aadhaar card with a photo added to the card and Aadhaar card and passport and had travelled to Bangladesh five times using the same documents. The bench, stating that it can consider the argument of the government counsel that if such an accused is granted bail, there is a possibility of him escaping without facing the judicial process, dismissed the petition.

During the hearing, the NIA counsel submitted that the Aadhaar card submitted by the accused was fake and dated December 18, 2017. On the same date, another Aadhaar card was created in his name, one with an address in Bengaluru and the other with an address in Assam.

They brought to the notice of the bench that an Aadhaar card cannot be issued in both Karnataka and Assam on the same day. Also, the investigation revealed that there was no signature of any registered doctor on the birth certificate submitted by him. The accused has travelled to Bangladesh five times. This proves that he is a citizen of Bangladesh and has connections with that country and his role in the human trafficking case.

548 families still awaiting allotments under CM's housing scheme

BENGALURU

Administrative confusion between Greater Bengaluru Authority (GBA) and Rajiv Gandhi Housing Corporation Limited (RGHCL) has left 548 families in the city in limbo, despite fully built homes being ready for allotment under the chief minister's Rs 1-lakh multi-storey housing scheme. Nearly 500 beneficiaries, who gathered at the RGHCL office on KG Road Monday to collect possession documents and house keys, were asked to return empty-handed after officials said the final list of allottees was yet to be sent by GBA. With no clarity on when the issue would be resolved, the beneficiaries staged a silent sit-in dharna outside the office.

RGHCL Managing Director Parashuram Shinnalkar said the corporation had not received the final allottee list from GBA. The houses in 22 locations are ready. They will be handed over once we receive the list from GBA, he said. Following the protest, GBA Assistant Commissioner (Welfare) HT Muralidhara met the applicants and assured them that the final list would be prepared by January 31. Explaining the delay, Muralidhara said that after the BBMP released Rs 27.5 crore to RGHCL for 550 beneficiaries, an equal number of virtual accounts received funds, leading applicants to believe they had been selected.

High Court asks govt to reconsider BMIC scheme

BENGALURU

The High Court issued a significant direction to the state government to review the Bengaluru-Mysore Infrastructure Corridor (BMIC) project, of which only one kilometer has been constructed in the last 25 years. The direction was given by a division bench of Justices DK Singh and T Venkatesh Naik, who dismissed a petition filed by Chandrika, a resident of Marappa Garden, seeking a direction to the government to distribute compensation for her land acquired for the BMIC project.

Under the BMIAC scheme, project developers are collecting huge tolls by constructing peripheral roads and toll plazas. However, the Bangalore Mysore Expressway and the infrastructure corridor remain only on paper. The project developers have kept a large amount of land in their custody.

However, the Bangalore Mysore Expressway has not been fully constructed yet. There is no indication of its construction in the future. The reason for this is that the land is not being utilized properly. Therefore, the bench directed the state government to reconsider the project and take appropriate steps in that regard. Also, the construction of the Bengaluru-Mysore infrastructure corridor was undertaken with the aim of reducing the city's congestion.

Police sources said that the mobile phone was found when the woman, who had come with a visitor's pass, was checked.

KSISF and staff were deployed on general duty to check the public coming for the interview of prisoners in Inspection Section-1 (General Interview Section) located on the left outside the main gate of the prison and the items they bring. BUDGET HEADACHE

CM Faces Financial Challenges Ahead of 2026–27 Budget

BENGALURU

Chief Minister Siddaramaiah has begun preparations for presenting the 2026–27 state budget, expected in March, with departmental budget meetings likely to commence next week. The Congress government, now in power for over two and a half years, is grappling with the ongoing financial pressures of the Pancha Guarantees, which have already placed a heavy burden on the state's finances.

For the 2026–27 fiscal year, the government faces three additional major financial challenges that further complicate budget planning. These include the relief expenditure for the Krishna Upper River Project Phase-3, the financial demands of the G Ram Ji Project, and the significant revenue shortfall resulting from GST rate simplification. Collectively, these new obligations, on top of the existing Pancha Guarantee commitments, have become a formidable constraint on state finances.

The revenue loss from GST rate simplification is particularly concerning, as the state heavily depends on GST collections for its income. The lower rates have led to a substantial reduction in projected revenue, intensifying the challenge of balancing expenditure with available resources. Financing these new commitments, while continuing to meet the promises under the five guarantees, has emerged as a major hurdle for Chief Minister Siddaramaiah and his administration.

Officials indicate that the government will need to carefully prioritize spending and explore measures to manage revenue shortfalls effectively. Amid rising financial pressures, the 2026–27 budget is expected to be tightly calculated, balancing developmental needs, project obligations, and the state's fiscal stability. The additional financial burdens underscore the complex fiscal scenario the Congress government faces in the upcoming budget.

Olympic Games Mark a new Chapter in Tumakuru's history: GP

TUMAKURU

Tumakuru will script a new chapter in its history by hosting the Karnataka Olympic Games from January 16 to 22, said Home Minister and District Incharge Minister Dr. G. Parameshwara. He described the event as a landmark occasion for the district.

Speaking on Tuesday after inaugurating the pre-event celebrations, unveiling the nameplate of the indoor stadium, and laying the foundation stone for its renovation at the city's indoor sports complex, the minister said hosting a state-level Olympic event in Tumakuru was a historic achievement. He noted that no such state-level games had been held in the district earlier. By persuading the Karnataka Olympic Association leadership, Tumakuru secured this prestigious opportunity, and the event would be organised on a grand scale unmatched by any other district, he said.

Dr. Parameshwara stated that national and international athletes, along with several dignitaries, would participate in the games. Chief Minister Siddaramaiah will inaugurate the event on January 16, while the Governor will deliver the valedictory address on January 22. All preparations have been completed to ensure the games are conducted in a celebratory manner.

Every year, between 5,000 and 10,000 athletes take part in state-level competitions, and the Karnataka Olympic Association aims to groom at least 500 athletes to compete at the Asian level. In this context, hosting the games in Tumakuru would mark a new beginning for local athletes and youth, opening fresh opportunities in sports.

The minister also said that sports are being actively promoted in the district, with plans to complete an international cricket stadium within a year to host global-level matches in Tumakuru.

Addressing objections to naming the indoor stadium after him, Dr. Parameshwara clarified that he is a sportsperson himself and that the honour recognises his long-standing contributions and services to the district and the sports sector.

Karnataka Olympic Association President and MLA Dr. K. Govindaraj praised the organisational efforts and highlighted Dr. Parameshwara's significant contributions to sports over the past 25 years. Sports Department Commissioner Chetan noted that Tumakuru's proximity to Bengaluru and its infrastructure made it an ideal venue, especially benefiting rural athletes and local youth.

Chitradurga Tops State in 'Ganita Ganaka' Programme

CHITRADURGA

Chitradurga district has emerged as the top-performing district in Karnataka in the implementation of the "Ganita Ganaka" programme, a special initiative aimed at strengthening foundational numeracy among primary school children, said Zilla Panchayat Chief Executive Officer Dr. S. Akash.

Ganita Ganaka is an evidence-backed flagship programme of the Karnataka government, introduced from the 2024–25 academic year to improve basic numeracy skills among students of Classes 3, 4 and 5 in government schools. The programme uses a unique phone-based tutoring model, wherein government school teachers conduct weekly one-on-one tutoring calls with students. These calls are held in the presence of parents or guardians, making parental involvement a key feature of the initiative.

This year, Chitradurga achieved outstanding results by initiating teacher training as early as the first week of November and launching the programme ahead of many other districts. Across 151 clusters, teachers from 1,586 schools actively participated in and completed the first cycle of the programme. Over 9,000 students benefited, with each child receiving four structured tutoring calls over a six-week period, including orientation and assessment calls. Chitradurga is also among the few districts to successfully begin the second cycle within the same academic year.

Several inspiring instances were reported during implementation. In one case, a headmaster arranged a mobile phone for a student lacking access. Teachers also observed increased confidence among usually quiet students during phone-based tutoring sessions. In some schools, teachers went beyond requirements by introducing three-digit calculations after students mastered two-digit operations.

Parental participation, especially from mothers, increased significantly, with some parents even purchasing phones to support their children's learning. Data analysis showed clear learning gains, with students solving two-digit division problems rising from 2% to 22%. On average, students learned 2.3 new math operations within one cycle. Dr. Akash said the collective efforts of teachers, institutions and parents have strengthened foundational learning outcomes across the district.

Op Sindoor shows strong military political coordination

General Dwivedi said the Northern Front is stable with balanced deployment, ongoing talks, resumed local activities

NEW DELHI

Army Chief General Upendra Dwivedi on Tuesday said Operation Sindoor is the best example of strong coordination among the Army, Navy and Air Force, carried out under a clear political directive with full freedom to act. He said the operation is still ongoing and any future misadventure will be answered firmly. He also praised the proactive role played by all agencies involved in the operation.

Addressing the annual Army press conference, General Dwivedi said the situation on the Northern Front remains stable but requires constant alertness. He noted that regular high-level talks, renewed contact and confidence-building measures are helping in gradual normalisation. This has allowed activities like grazing, medical camps and other local movement along the northern borders.

He added that deployment along the Line of Actual Control remains balanced and strong, while infrastructure and capability development are moving ahead through a whole-of-government approach.

Speaking on the northwestern front, the Army chief referred to India's response after the Pahalgam terror attack. He said a clear and decisive decision was taken at the highest political level. Operation Sindoor was planned and executed with precision. The initial action lasted 22 minutes on May 7, followed by an 88-hour coordinated operation till May 10. The strikes hit deep targets, destroyed terror infrastructure and challenged long-standing nuclear threats.

The Army successfully destroyed seven of the nine identified targets and played a key role in managing Pakistan's response in a controlled manner. Since May 10, the situation in Jammu and Kashmir remains sensitive but fully under control.

In 2025, 31 terrorists were killed, with 65 per cent of Pakistani origin. All three attackers involved in the Pahalgam incident were neutralised. Active local terrorists are now in single digits, and new recruitment has almost stopped, with only two cases reported.

General Dwivedi said clear signs of improvement are visible in Jammu and Kashmir. Development work has picked up, tourism has revived, and the Shri Amarnath Yatra was held peacefully with over four lakh pilgrims, higher than the five-year average. He said the shift from terrorism to tourism is steadily becoming a reality.

Court sends expelled Cong MLA to police custody

THIRUVALLA

A court in Thiruvalla on Tuesday sent expelled Congress MLA Rahul Mamkootathil to three days of police custody in connection with a rape case, intensifying a probe that has sparked strong political reactions across Kerala. The order was passed by the Chief Judicial Magistrate Court, which accepted the prosecution's request for custodial interrogation.

The court directed the police to produce Mamkootathil again on Thursday and posted the hearing on his bail plea for Friday. Prosecutors told the court that police custody was necessary to collect more evidence, including electronic data and other circumstantial material. They also said questioning was needed to check contradictions in earlier statements recorded during the investigation.

Mamkootathil was arrested late Saturday night in this case. Earlier, he had managed to secure anticipatory bail in two other similar cases, making this arrest a significant development. The case has gained wide attention as it comes at a politically sensitive time, with Kerala witnessing heightened activity ahead of the Assembly elections.

The investigation received further momentum on Tuesday with the arrival of the complainant in Kerala from Canada. Police sources said her presence would be vital for detailed questioning and for confirming evidence already collected. Her statement is expected to play an important role as investigators prepare for the upcoming bail hearing.

JD(U) MP slams opposition over credibility concerns

NEW DELHI

Janata Dal(U) Rajya Sabha MP Sanjay Kumar Jha on Tuesday criticised RJD leader Tejashwi Yadav's comments on Bihar's political scenario, asserting that the opposition lacks credibility among the people and must introspect.

Speaking on Tejashwi's statement, Jha said, "Our commitment spans 20 years, and the people will judge it. We have made commitments to the public. The opposition should first earn credibility before pointing fingers. They lack trust among voters in this election." He added that the JD(U) has fulfilled its promises, and this reliability explains why people continue to support them. Tejashwi Yadav had alleged that the NDA transformed democracy into a "dhan tantra" and "machine tantra," claiming the people, not his party, lost the Bihar Assembly elections last year. Returning from a European tour, he accused the government of winning through deceit and announced a 100-day observation period before commenting on the NDA's functioning. Yadav stated, "Since we practice positive politics, I will refrain from commenting for 100 days. I will observe when our mothers and sisters get Rs 2 lakh, when one crore youth get jobs, and whether promised factories are set up in every district." Jha also praised Chief Minister Nitish Kumar's ongoing 'Samriddhi Yatra', highlighting its role in strengthening citizen engagement. "The Chief Minister's field visits help him take direct feedback and plan government schemes effectively," he said, commending the administration's focus on participatory governance.

BHOPAL

The Madhya Pradesh government on Tuesday approved several major initiatives covering space technology, renewable energy, agriculture and education, signaling a strong push towards innovation and sustainable growth. The decisions were taken at a cabinet meeting chaired by Chief Minister Dr Mohan Yadav in Bhopal.

A key highlight was the clearance of the Madhya Pradesh Space Act 2026 along with the Madhya Pradesh Space Tech Policy 2026. The policy aims to promote satellite manufacturing, geospatial services and space based applications. Officials said it could attract investments worth Rs 1,000 crore and create nearly 8,000 jobs over the next five years, placing the state firmly on India's space industry map.

In the renewable energy sector, the cabinet approved large solar to storage projects to ensure round the clock power supply. These include two 300 megawatt projects with four and six hour storage, and a 200 megawatt solar project capable of storing power for 24 hours. Projects will be awarded through competitive bidding at low tariffs.

Agriculture also received a boost with approval for major irrigation projects. Together, these schemes will help irrigate large areas across several districts and directly benefit over 20,000 farmers.

In education, the cabinet approved the second phase of the Sandipani School Scheme. Under this phase, 200 fully equipped schools will be built at a cost of around Rs 3,660 crore. A new four tier time bound pay scale for teachers was also approved, offering financial relief.

Other decisions included higher compensation for a police officer's family, tax exemptions at trade fairs and a major water augmentation project for the Ujjain division. The government said farmer welfare, education and innovation will remain top priorities in 2026.

The meeting, chaired by Chief Minister Nitish Kumar, was the first cabinet meeting of the new year and was attended by all ministers, including Deputy Chief Ministers Samrat Choudhary and Vijay Kumar Sinha.

The decisions are seen as a key step towards fulfilling promises made by Nitish Kumar and the NDA during the 2025 Assembly elections. After forming the new government, the administration has started work on a special action plan focused on jobs and employment generation.

The cabinet stressed the need to fill vacancies in various departments and attract private investment to create large scale employment opportunities. Several development and employment related schemes were approved during the meeting.

One major approval was for a Rs 33.29 crore project to construct a 220 KV DC transmission line. This project aims to ensure uninterrupted and quality power supply to the Integrated Manufacturing Cluster in Gaya under the Bihar State Power Transmission Company Limited.

The cabinet also cleared the reorganisation and creation of 694 posts in the Agriculture Department. These include 534 Plant Protection Supervisor posts and 160 Plant Protection Inspector posts, created by restructuring existing sanctioned positions.

A temporary ex cadre post of Forest and Environment Advisor was approved for three years. The position will be filled by a retired forest service officer to speed up environmental clearances and project execution.

In another move, 200 sanctioned posts in the Fisheries Directorate were reorganised under new service rules. The cabinet also approved the Bihar Anand Karaj Marriage Registration Rules, allowing formal registration of marriages under the Anand tradition.

In the transport sector, the minimum qualification for a Conductor License was reduced from Class 10 to Class 8 to expand job access. The cabinet further approved Rs 314.20 crore for constructing Bihar Bhawan in Mumbai.

Overall, the decisions reflect the state government's strong focus on employment, infrastructure development, administrative reform and inclusive governance at the start of the year.

Uddhav Thackeray urged unity to protect Marathi interests, resist external pressure, and said January 15 elections determine Mumbai's future

Thackeray brothers revive Marathi pride in BMC polls

MUMBAI

The campaign for the Brihanmumbai Municipal Corporation elections has turned intense as the Thackeray brothers invoked memories of the historic Samyukta Maharashtra Movement to corner the BJP and rally Marathi voters. Uddhav Thackeray and Raj Thackeray compared the civic polls to a renewed struggle to protect Mumbai's identity.

Both leaders described the upcoming BMC elections as a decisive battle to stop what they called a hostile takeover of the city. By recalling the movement that ensured Mumbai remained part of Maharashtra, they sought to remind voters of past sacrifices and link them to present political choices.

Uddhav Thackeray said that differences were set aside to safeguard Maharashtra and Mumbai. He warned that the city should never bow to external pressure and stressed that unity was needed to protect Marathi interests. He said the January 15 elections would decide the future of Mumbai's identity.

Explaining their reunion after years, Uddhav said the decision was taken only to protect Maharashtra. He added that any attempt to weaken Mumbai's link with the state would be strongly opposed.

Raj Thackeray issued a sharp warning to Marathi voters, calling the election the last chance for the Marathi manoos. He urged people not to fight among themselves, claiming that internal divisions only benefit the BJP.

The brothers accused the BJP of revenge politics and alleged that Mumbai's control was slowly shifting away from Maharashtra. They claimed that economic and political interests linked to Gujarat were gaining influence over the city.

Raj clarified that the concern was not about Mumbai changing states, but about losing control over land, wealth and decisions.

They also accused the BJP of focusing on religious polarisation instead of development. Uddhav targeted Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis, alleging that communal issues are raised before every election. He even offered a reward to anyone who could show an election fought without such tactics.

CPI M hit as Ayisha Potty joins Congress

THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

The ruling CPI M in Kerala suffered a major political jolt on Tuesday as three time former MLA Ayisha Potty formally joined the Congress, boosting the Opposition ahead of the upcoming Assembly elections. Her move is being seen as a serious setback for the Left and a morale lifter for the Congress. Ayisha Potty, a lawyer by profession, represented the Kottarakara Assembly constituency for three consecutive terms from 2006. During her tenure, she built a strong image as a grassroots leader and gained attention for her ability to connect with ordinary people. Her relationship with the CPI M leadership reportedly began to weaken over the years. In 2021, she was denied a party ticket, a decision that marked a turning point in her political career.

German Chancellor Merz concludes landmark India visit

GANDHINAGAR

German Chancellor Friedrich Merz departed for home on Tuesday after completing a two day official visit to India that marked a significant step forward in bilateral relations. Gujarat Governor Acharya Devvrat, Chief Minister Bhupendrabhai Patel and senior officials saw him off at Ahmedabad Airport.

During his visit, Chancellor Merz held delegation level talks with Prime Minister Narendra Modi at the Mahatma Mandir Convention Centre in Gandhinagar. Both leaders agreed to take India Germany relations to a higher level with deeper cooperation in defence, space and critical emerging technologies.

Prime Minister Modi said the visit added fresh momentum to ties as the two nations mark 25 years of strategic partnership and 75 years of diplomatic relations. He noted that India was honoured to be Chancellor Merz's first destination in Asia, reflecting his personal commitment to the partnership.

The discussions also covered climate action, trusted supply chains, education, skilling, sports and stronger cultural and people to people links. The leaders later attended the International Kite Festival at the Sabarmati Riverfront, where they flew kites together and took part in the celebrations.

Congress projects Rahul Gandhi as Thalaiva in Tamil Nadu

CHENNAI

Congress leader and Leader of Opposition in the Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi received a grand welcome on his arrival in Tamil Nadu on Tuesday, with party workers hailing him as "Thalaiva", meaning leader. The display reflects the Congress party's effort to assert greater political space within the ruling alliance ahead of the Assembly elections later this year.

Rahul Gandhi is visiting the state to attend the golden jubilee celebrations of a school in Gudalur in the Nilgiris district. While the party has described the visit as non political, it has sparked wide speculation about its timing and intent.

According to party sources, Gandhi is expected to interact with students and local residents during his visit. However, the Tamil Nadu Congress Committee organised a show of strength at the Chennai airport, where supporters held banners projecting him as a supreme leader.

The public enthusiasm comes at a time when the Congress is demanding a bigger role in the state government, a proposal that has so far been rejected by its ally, the Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam, which leads the government.

Recent reports have also suggested that the Congress is exploring options with actor politician Vijay's Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam to strengthen its bargaining position. Though TNCC leaders have denied such talks, the "Thalaiva" slogan is being seen as a message of political intent.

Sources say tensions between the allies have grown in recent days, with the Congress seeking at least 40 seats in the 234 member Assembly and pushing for a formal coalition framework. Currently, the party has 17 MLAs.

DMK leaders have firmly rejected the demand. State minister I Periyasamy reiterated that Tamil Nadu follows a tradition of single party rule under Chief Minister M K Stalin.

Rahul Gandhi is scheduled to meet district level party leaders later in the day to discuss the Congress strategy for the coming months.

Nitin Nabin set to take BJP helm

NEW DELHI

The Bharatiya Janata Party is set for an important organisational change as its Working President Nitin Nabin is expected to file his nomination for the post of national President on January 19, according to party sources. The formal announcement of the new party chief is scheduled for January 20.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi is likely to be present as the proposer during the nomination process. His presence is being seen as a strong signal of confidence in Nitin Nabin's leadership and a sign of continuity in the party's direction and organisation.

The nomination process will follow the BJP's established internal procedures for selecting its national President. Several senior leaders, central office bearers and key members of the party are expected to attend the event, making it a high profile moment in the BJP's organisational calendar.

Party sources said the official declaration on January 20 will bring clarity to the BJP's leadership structure ahead of future electoral challenges. The appointment is being closely watched as the party prepares its long term political and governance strategies at the national level.

STATE CORRUPTION CRACKDOWN

Rajasthan ACB cracks down on illegal mining

JAIPUR

The Anti Corruption Bureau of Rajasthan has registered a case against officials of the Mining Department, crusher owners and royalty contractors for allegedly allowing large scale illegal mining and causing heavy revenue loss to the state government. The action follows a preliminary investigation into mining activities in the Bharatpur region.

According to officials, the case was filed by the ACB's Bharatpur unit under directions from its Jaipur headquarters after receiving complaints about serious irregularities. The complaint alleged that illegal mining was being shown as legal through the misuse of official permits.

The investigation found that permits issued for closed or non operational mines were allegedly used to transport and process minerals extracted illegally. These minerals were falsely recorded as legally mined, helping the accused avoid paying royalty and other government charges.

The ACB said it found initial evidence pointing to collusion between public officials and private players. Named in the case are several mining department officials, including engineers, supervisors and surveyors posted in Bharatpur at different times. The accused officials allegedly abused their positions to support illegal activities.

Private parties named include lease holders, crusher owners and royalty contractors who are believed to have benefited from the operation. The inquiry revealed that millions of tonnes of minerals were extracted illegally through this network. By manipulating records and permits, the accused allegedly caused a major financial loss to the state exchequer. The ACB described the acts as criminal conspiracy involving both government officials and private individuals.

Based on the findings, the bureau has registered a case under relevant sections of the Prevention of Corruption Act. Officials said the investigation is still in progress and aims to determine the full scale of illegal mining, calculate the total revenue loss and identify more people involved.

South Korea, Japan Leaders Stress Cooperation Amid Global Order

South Korean and Japanese leaders underscored deeper cooperation, urging future-focused ties despite historical grievances and escalating regional uncertainties.

SEOUL

South Korean President Lee Jae Myung on Tuesday emphasised that cooperation between South Korea and Japan has become more vital than ever, pointing to an increasingly complex and unpredictable international environment. Speaking at the opening of summit talks with Japanese Prime Minister Sanae Takaichi, Lee urged both countries to pursue a forward-looking relationship, even as they continue to grapple with the painful legacy of Japan's colonial rule over the Korean Peninsula.

Amid a complex and dizzying international order, I believe that cooperation between Korea and Japan is more important than ever, Lee said. His remarks reflected growing concern over geopolitical instability, intensifying rivalries in East Asia, and the erosion of traditional multilateral frameworks.

The summit followed Lee's recent talks with Chinese President Xi Jinping in Beijing, held against the backdrop of heightened tensions between China and Japan. Strains have particularly risen over sensitive regional issues, including comments made by Prime Minister Takaichi regarding Taiwan, which have drawn sharp reactions from Beijing.

Highlighting the progress achieved since Seoul and Tokyo normalised diplomatic relations six decades ago, Lee noted that the two neighbours have built a largely mutually beneficial partnership over the past 60 years. He expressed hope that the next six decades would see even closer collaboration based on trust, realism, and shared strategic interests.

Prime Minister Takaichi echoed this sentiment, saying she was committed to working closely with Lee to promote regional stability. She expressed optimism that the South Korean leader's visit would help further elevate bilateral ties and create momentum for sustained dialogue and cooperation.

Lee also called for expanding cooperation across a wide range of areas, including artificial intelligence, economic security, social and cultural exchanges, and people-to-people contacts. He warned that geopolitical uncertainty is rising, global supply chains are increasingly being weaponised, and multilateralism is under severe strain.

To address the pressing challenges we face, I hope that the two countries will squarely confront history while expanding cooperation based on deep mutual trust, Lee said.

Deadly Winter Storm Claims Palestinian Lives in Gaza

GAZA

At least eight Palestinians have died across the Gaza Strip as a powerful winter storm swept through the war-ravaged enclave, bringing freezing temperatures, torrential rain, and strong winds. The harsh weather has compounded the suffering of tens of thousands of displaced residents who are surviving in flimsy tents and makeshift shelters after months of relentless Israeli attacks.

According to Gaza's Civil Defence, four people died as a direct result of exposure to extreme cold caused by a severe weather depression affecting the coastal territory. A spokesperson for the agency said the plunging temperatures and fierce winds proved fatal for families lacking proper shelter, blankets, or heating fuel. The deaths were reported as Israel continues to restrict the entry of humanitarian aid and essential shelter materials into the besieged enclave, despite provisions under a ceasefire agreement reached on October 10.

Medical sources confirmed that one of the victims was a one-year-old child who died inside a family tent before being rushed to al-Aqsa Hospital in Deir al-Balah. Doctors said the child succumbed to the cold amid relentless rain and freezing winds, highlighting the extreme vulnerability of infants and the elderly in current conditions.

In addition to deaths caused by exposure, four other Palestinians were killed when weakened buildings collapsed during the storm. Civil Defence officials and medical staff at al-Shifa Hospital reported that three people, including a 15-year-old girl, were crushed when a war-damaged structure collapsed in Gaza City. A fourth person was killed in a separate building collapse in another part of the city, where infrastructure has been severely compromised by months of bombardment.

Mahmoud Basal, spokesperson for Gaza Civil Defence, warned that the storm could have catastrophic consequences for the wider population. He said the majority of Gaza's residents have been left without adequate housing due to the ongoing Israeli military campaign and restrictions on goods entering the territory.

A severe winter storm has killed eight Palestinians in Gaza, worsening humanitarian suffering amid displacement, destruction, and restricted aid.

The West Bank soccer field slated for demolition by Israel

TEHRAN

Israeli authorities have ordered the demolition of a soccer field inside the densely populated Aida refugee camp near Bethlehem, a move residents say will worsen living conditions for Palestinian children in the occupied West Bank. One of the few open spaces in the camp, the field has long served as a vital recreational outlet amid overcrowding, poverty, and frequent military incursions. Families say its loss would deprive children of a rare sense of normalcy and hope in daily camp life. "If the field gets demolished, this will destroy our dreams and our future," said 13-year-old Rital Sarhan, who trains there with a girls' soccer team. Community leaders stress the field's importance for children's mental and physical well-being in a camp marked by trauma and limited opportunities. Youth groups regularly use the space for sports activities and gatherings that help children cope with stress. Human rights organisations warn demolishing recreational spaces harms children and raises serious legal and humanitarian concerns globally.

Thousands of Afghan women and families face poverty, winter hardship, and rights abuses after forced deportations from neighbours.

Deported Afghan Women and Families Face Deepening Poverty

KABUL

Thousands of Afghan women and families deported from neighbouring Pakistan and Iran are facing worsening poverty, lack of shelter, and mounting human rights concerns as they struggle to rebuild their lives in Afghanistan, according to local and international reports released on Tuesday.

Afghan returnees have described severe economic hardship, inadequate housing, and limited access to essential services such as food, healthcare, and heating during harsh winter conditions. Many of the affected households are headed by women who were previously employed in Pakistan and Iran. However, sudden deportations have stripped them of income and support systems, leaving entire families vulnerable to extreme deprivation.

The International Organisation for Migration (IOM) has warned that more than two million Afghan returnees now face serious livelihood challenges. Forced deportations, the agency said, are further intensifying an already dire refugee and humanitarian crisis. Women and children are particularly at risk, with many being returned to regions where gender-based violence, early or forced marriages, and severe restrictions on women's freedoms remain widespread.

Journalists and media workers in Afghanistan are also facing growing dangers. According to Khaama Press, reporting on sensitive issues such as forced deportations, public protests, and women's rights has become increasingly risky. Many journalists have reportedly been subjected to detention, harassment, or violence, contributing to a climate of fear and restricting the flow of independent information.

Data from United Nations agencies paints a bleak picture of the situation on the ground. UN reports indicate that only 11 per cent of Afghan returnees are currently employed, while one in four lacks adequate housing. More than half of all returning households are unable to meet even basic daily needs, with women-headed families facing particularly high levels of food insecurity and unemployment. Women reportedly account for nearly half of all returnees from Pakistan and about one-third from Iran. Overall, around 75 per cent of Afghans are unemployed, and nearly 90 per cent live below the poverty line.

Washington–Tehran Tensions Escalate as Iran Signals Readiness

TEHRAN

Tensions between the United States and Iran escalated on Tuesday as both sides exchanged increasingly confrontational statements over Iran's handling of nationwide protests. Iranian Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi said Tehran is prepared for war after US President Donald Trump threatened possible military action in response to Iran's crackdown on demonstrators. Araghchi said Iran would not back down under external pressure and accused Washington of fuelling instability, following Trump's warning of consequences over what the US calls violent suppression of protests. Iran's intelligence agency further heightened tensions by announcing the seizure of US-made weapons and explosives allegedly hidden in homes and intended for militants seeking to destabilise the country. The United States has not publicly responded.

In an interview with Al Jazeera, Araghchi claimed authorities possess audio recordings proving foreign involvement, alleging voices from abroad instructed "terrorist agents" to fire on police or demonstrators. Iran has accused the US and Israel of orchestrating unrest, claims both deny. He also defended internet restrictions during the protests, despite international criticism.

Government employees protest in Balochistan, seeking 30 pc disparity reduction allowance

QUETTA

Government employees held protests in Pakistan's Balochistan, demanding the implementation of the Disparity Reduction Allowance (DRA), leading to road blockades and arrests, local media reported. The employees from various government departments have been holding protests for the past seven months, demanding 30 per cent DRA, like how it has been granted in Punjab and Sindh provinces.

Employees from various sectors joined the protest led by the Balochistan Grand Alliance (BGA). They have claimed that employees of institutions like the Governor's House, Chief Minister's Secretariat, and High Court have been paid higher salaries despite being in the same grade as workers in other government departments, The Balochistan Post reported.

The BGA emphasised the need to address this salary disparity, stressing that the committee established by the Balochistan government has already recommended the DRA. However, the Balochistan CM has taken no action on the issue so far.

In retaliation for the protests, the Balochistan government has reportedly launched a crackdown on protest leaders, with more than 50 employees arrested so far.

Previously, 38 assistant professors and lecturers from government colleges were suspended for participating in the protest.

In response to the government's actions, employees have intensified protests, with strikes, road blockages and mass deportations. Employees blocked key highways connecting Quetta to Karachi, Taftan, Gwadar, and Sindh in cities like Khuzdar, Lasbela, and Nasirabad, stalling traffic movement on the roads.

The BGA has said that it plans to hold protests in phases, with the first phase involving road blockages until January 14, followed by a complete closure of government offices in Balochistan on January 15.

The BGA announced that the final stage of the protest will be held on January 20, with a sit-in planned near the Red Zone in Quetta. The employees have warned the government that they will launch a 'Jail Bharo' (Fill the Jails) movement if no action is taken.

Previously, the Balochistan government suspended 38 assistant professors and lecturers, including six female teachers from various departments of the colleges, for three months over their participation in strikes and protests, local media reported.

GREENLAND REJECTS ACQUISITION

Greenland Leaders Push Back as Global Spotlight Grows Over US Interest

DENMARK

Inside the Danish parliament, international media attention has surged to unprecedented levels for Greenland's political representatives. In a tightly packed schedule of back-to-back interviews, journalists are ushered in and out of the office of Aaja Chemnitz, one of Greenland's two members of the Danish parliament, reflecting the sudden global focus on the Arctic territory.

The rising interest follows a crisis meeting held last week by Denmark's foreign relations committee, convened to address a single urgent issue: the rapidly deteriorating relationship between the Kingdom of Denmark and its NATO ally, the United States. At the centre of the dispute is renewed pressure from former US President Donald Trump, who has once again voiced ambitions for Washington to acquire Greenland.

Speaking to Al Jazeera, Chemnitz, a member of the Inuit Ataqatigiit (IA) party, firmly rejected the idea. Greenland is not for sale, and Greenland will never be for sale, she said, stressing that the issue goes far beyond economics or strategic interests. According to Chemnitz, Greenland's identity is deeply rooted in its culture, language, and history, all of which would be fundamentally altered by any change in sovereignty. People seem to think they can buy the Greenlandic soul, she added, noting that becoming American citizens is not something the majority of Greenlanders desire.

The controversy has placed enormous pressure on Greenland's small population of around 56,000 people, many of whom are unaccustomed to being at the centre of global geopolitical rivalry. The island's other parliamentary representative, Aki-Matilda Hoegh-Dam of the Naleraq party, described the situation as deeply unsettling.

It has been a very turbulent time for many Greenlanders, Hoegh-Dam told Al Jazeera. She explained that Greenland has historically been isolated from major global powers, particularly in the realm of foreign relations, for nearly three centuries. But now we feel cornered, and that is making a lot of people anxious, she said, pointing to growing fears about external pressure and loss of self-determination.

A senior government official said the move could help the country stay ahead in artificial intelligence competition. During a recent visit to Nvidia headquarters after CES 2026, officials promised early supply of Blackwell GPUs and priority access to Vera Rubin chips. The Korean government said faster access to advanced chips is vital for AI, robotics, autonomous driving, healthcare, and smart technology growth. Talks also included setting up a Nvidia research centre to support startups and strengthen future digital innovation nationwide.

Amex shares slide after trump rate cap

New Delhi

American Express shares fell sharply after US President Donald Trump proposed a one year cap on credit card interest rates at ten percent. Amex dropped over four percent, while Capital One, Citigroup, Wells Fargo, and Synchrony Financial also declined. Analysts warned the move could cut profits and limit lending. Trump said high rates hurt working people and promised strict action. Industry groups supported cheaper credit but cautioned availability may suffer. Experts added such a cap needs congressional approval and faces strong banking lobby resistance. Markets reacted quickly as investors feared tighter rules before upcoming elections nationwide.

Government pushes safer rules for delivery workers

After govt intervention, Blinkit removed its ten-minute delivery claim, while others pledged removing delivery-time promises.

NEW DELHI

The government has asked online food delivery and quick commerce platforms to remove rigid ten minute delivery promises to ensure the safety of gig workers. Labour Minister Mansukh Mandaviya raised the issue during meetings with major companies operating in the sector.

Mandaviya held discussions with representatives of Blinkit, Zepto, Swiggy and Zomato, urging them to put worker safety above speed. He advised the companies to stop using strict delivery timelines on their apps, advertisements and promotional material, saying such commitments create unsafe pressure on delivery partners.

After the government's intervention, Blinkit has reportedly removed its ten minute delivery claim from all its brand platforms. Other companies also assured the minister that delivery time promises would be removed from advertisements and social media pages.

The move is being seen as an important step towards improving working conditions for delivery partners, many of whom rush through busy roads to meet tight deadlines. Safety concerns for gig workers have been growing, especially in crowded urban areas.

The issue has also received political attention. Aam Aadmi Party Rajya Sabha MP Raghav Chadha has been highlighting the risks faced by delivery workers. On Monday, he shared a video of himself spending a day as a delivery partner in Delhi to understand their daily struggles.

Wearing a delivery company jacket, Chadha was seen riding through traffic and delivering parcels. He said the experience helped him understand the challenges faced by gig workers beyond policy discussions.

Earlier this month, Chadha welcomed the draft social security rules for gig workers, calling them a first step towards dignity and protection. He also supported delivery partners who held a symbolic nationwide strike on New Year's Eve.

The strike saw thousands of workers logging off apps or reducing work, causing delays on a busy day. Chadha said their demands for fair wages and safety are valid, adding that gig workers play a vital role in India's urban economy.

Critical minerals key to India manufacturing push

NEW DELHI

Vaishnaw, overseeing Railways and Electronics & IT, arrived in the US Sunday to attend a high-level meeting with Treasury Secretary Bessent on critical mineral supply chains

Strengthening critical mineral supply chains is essential for boosting India's manufacturing strength and supporting long term growth, Union Minister Ashwini Vaishnaw said on Tuesday. The minister made the remarks while participating in the Critical Minerals Ministerial Meeting held in the United States.

Vaishnaw, who handles the Railways and Electronics and IT portfolios, arrived in the US on Sunday to attend the high level meeting hosted by US Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent. The discussions focused on securing mineral supply chains that are crucial for modern industries and advanced technologies.

Sharing his views on social media, the minister said strong and reliable access to critical minerals is vital for improving the resilience of India's manufacturing base and its fast growing electronics sector. He stressed that supply chain stability is necessary to meet future industrial demand.

US Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent said participating nations showed a shared commitment to quickly addressing weaknesses in global mineral supply chains. He added that countries should focus on reducing risks rather than cutting economic ties, and act decisively to ensure long term stability.

The visit comes as India recently announced a major scheme to promote the manufacturing of sintered Rare Earth Permanent Magnets. The scheme aims to reduce import dependence and strengthen India's role in global advanced materials supply chains.

With a financial outlay of Rs 7,280 crore, the plan targets setting up 6,000 metric tonnes per year of integrated manufacturing capacity, covering the entire process from rare earth oxides to finished magnets.

The initiative is expected to attract technology focused investments, generate jobs and support India's Net Zero 2070 goals. It also aligns with the vision of Aatmanirbhar Bharat by building strong domestic capabilities.

India is also working through global platforms like the Minerals Security Partnership and the Indo Pacific Economic Framework to develop secure and resilient critical mineral supply networks.

India office market hits record high 2025

NEW DELHI

India's office market reached a new high in 2025, recording a record 83.3 million square feet of gross leasing, according to a new report. The strong performance came despite global uncertainty and highlighted India's growing strength as a major business destination.

A report by real estate consultancy JLL said global companies accounted for 58.4 per cent of total office leasing during the year. This showed continued confidence in India's long-term economic outlook and its ability to attract global investment.

Bengaluru, Hyderabad, Pune and Mumbai achieved their best-ever leasing volumes, reflecting steady demand across sectors. Other cities also reported higher or stable leasing levels compared to the previous year, pointing to wider demand beyond major metros.

Global Capability Centres emerged as the biggest driver of office demand in 2025. They accounted for 37.7 per cent of total leasing and absorbed a record 31 million square feet of space, the highest ever for this segment.

The flexible office segment also showed strong growth. In the fourth quarter of 2025, flex spaces reached a 26.6 per cent share, marking their highest quarterly contribution so far.

Technology firms led leasing activity for the full year with a 25.8 per cent share. Manufacturing and industrial companies followed with 15.4 per cent, while the BFSI sector closely matched with 15.2 per cent. Bengaluru remained the top choice for global firms, holding a 29 per cent share. Delhi-NCR followed, with Mumbai and Hyderabad close behind.

India AI Impact Summit set to redefine future

NEW DELHI

The upcoming India AI Impact Summit 2026 is expected to become a major turning point for the country in shaping the future of responsible and inclusive Artificial Intelligence, according to experts. The summit will be held in New Delhi from February 16 to 20 and is being seen as a key global platform for meaningful AI discussions.

An official statement from the IT Ministry said the event was highlighted during the 38th episode of Digital India Ask Our Experts. Experts explained that the summit is built around three guiding principles, known as the "Sutras" — People, Planet and Progress. These pillars aim to ensure that AI development benefits society, protects the environment and supports steady growth.

Several focused working groups, called "Chakras", will hold discussions on policy, skills development and real-world use of AI. The outcomes are expected to influence AI planning not only in India but also across the Global South. Special attention will be given to young people, startups, women innovators and learners from Tier-2 and Tier-3 cities.

The summit will also host the India AI Impact Expo 2026 at Bharat Mandapam. The expo will showcase AI solutions improving education, healthcare, agriculture and governance. Events such as AI and Data Labs, pitch fests and the YUVAI Global Youth Challenge will offer learning and growth opportunities.

During the programme, citizens raised questions about AI infrastructure, open data access, healthcare data and inclusion of non-technical users. Experts assured that IndiaAI is building open, safe and inclusive platforms.

Recently, Prime Minister Narendra Modi encouraged startups to use AI for social good, calling his interaction with young innovators meaningful and inspiring.

Bond markets anticipate higher 2026 state borrowing, while RBI support, fiscal prudence, and index inclusion may attract foreign investors

India growth sweet spot spurs policy rethink

NEW DELHI

India appears to be in a Goldilocks phase of strong economic growth and low inflation, with economists calling for a shift towards a near neutral policy path to support stability in 2026.

A new report by HSBC Global Investment Research said India is currently enjoying balanced conditions, where growth remains healthy while inflation stays under control, creating space for thoughtful policy decisions.

The report suggested that a near neutral approach, combining fiscal discipline with continued monetary support, would help markets and the broader economy perform steadily in the coming year.

It added that a mix of tight government spending and easier monetary policy could create better balance and remain positive for all major asset classes.

However, economists warned that deeper issues such as weak corporate investment and limited foreign capital inflows still need careful attention.

Bond markets have already priced in higher state borrowing expected in early 2026, while steps like RBI bond purchases, fiscal prudence in the Union Budget and possible global bond index inclusion could draw foreign investors.

The report noted that equities may benefit from recent reforms, rising nominal GDP and more reasonable valuations, but lasting gains will depend on structural reforms that encourage private investment.

Chief India Economist Pranjul Bhandari said inflation is likely to stay just below the four percent target next year, easing pressure on the central bank to raise rates.

She added there is room for further easing if growth slows, a view different from market expectations of tighter money and looser fiscal policy.

Globally, factors such as tariff developments, bond index inclusion and changing developed market yields continue to influence Indian markets.

The central government plans to reduce public debt to pre pandemic levels by financial year 2031 through steady fiscal consolidation, supported partly by privatisation efforts.

South Korea manufacturers expect tough economic year

SEOUL

Around 40 percent of South Korean manufacturers expect economic conditions to worsen this year, showing rising concern over currency swings and global uncertainty, according to a new industry survey.

A poll by the Korea Chamber of Commerce and Industry covering 2,208 manufacturing firms found that 40.1 percent of respondents foresee a deterioration in the economy. Among them, 14.7 percent expect a clear decline, while 25.4 percent anticipate a mild slowdown.

Only 23.6 percent of companies believe conditions will improve, while 36.4 percent expect the economy to remain mostly unchanged from 2025. The results point to cautious sentiment across the manufacturing sector.

The chamber said 47 percent of respondents cited a stronger US dollar and rising volatility in the foreign exchange market as major drags. Sharp changes in crude oil prices and raw material costs were also named as key risks.

Trade uncertainty linked to policies of US President Donald Trump's administration added further pressure on business confidence.

Due to these concerns, only 20 percent of firms said they plan to expand operations this year. About 67 percent said they would maintain current business levels and delay major investments.

The outlook differed across industries. In the semiconductor sector, which is enjoying strong global demand, 47 percent of companies plan to expand. Pharmaceutical and cosmetics firms were also relatively optimistic, with around 39 percent in each sector expecting growth.

Kang Seok-koo, head of research at the chamber, said that while exports and domestic consumption may recover, uneven industry growth and a strong dollar are pushing firms to remain cautious this year overall.

US Iran tariffs raise fresh concerns India

NEW DELHI

India may face fresh trade pressure after the United States announced a 25 per cent tariff on countries doing business with Iran. The move comes at a time when India is already dealing with high US tariffs on several exports. Experts say the decision could affect India due to its strong trade links with Tehran.

India is among Iran's top five trading partners. Official data shows that during the financial year 2024–25, India exported goods worth 1.24 billion dollars to Iran, while imports stood at 0.44 billion dollars. This took total bilateral trade to around 1.68 billion dollars.

Major Indian exports to Iran include rice, tea, sugar, medicines, manmade fibres, electrical equipment and artificial jewellery. In return, India imports dry fruits, chemicals and glassware from Iran. These trade ties have remained steady despite global sanctions on Tehran.

India and Iran also share strategic cooperation. In 2015, both countries signed an agreement to jointly develop the Shahid Beheshti Port at Chabahar. India continues to support the port's growth as a key hub for regional trade and humanitarian supplies.

ELECTRIC-INDIA-ACCELERATES

Government drives electric vehicle growth at record pace

NEW DELHI

India's push towards electric mobility gained strong momentum in 2025 as the Centre accelerated electric vehicle adoption through record investments and successful policy measures, according to an official statement released on Tuesday.

The Ministry of Heavy Industries said the Production Linked Incentive scheme for the auto sector played a major role in strengthening India's EV ecosystem. During 2024–25, claims worth nearly Rs 2,000 crore were disbursed under the PLI Auto scheme, reflecting rising industry participation and confidence.

By December 31, 2025, incentives had supported more than 13.61 lakh electric vehicles across the country. These included over 10.42 lakh electric two wheelers, around 2.38 lakh three wheelers, nearly 80,000 electric cars and more than 1,300 electric buses.

A major boost came from the PM E DRIVE scheme, launched in September 2024 with a total outlay of Rs 10,900 crore. The scheme aims to speed up EV adoption, expand charging infrastructure and strengthen domestic EV manufacturing.

Under the scheme, Rs 3,679 crore has been set aside to support over 28 lakh electric vehicles, while Rs 4,391 crore has been allocated for deploying more than 14,000 electric buses through public transport agencies.

As of the end of 2025, claims worth Rs 1,703 crore had been cleared and over 21 lakh electric vehicles sold under the scheme.

In addition, government owned CESL finalised one of India's largest tenders for 10,900 electric buses across five major cities.

The ministry is also implementing the Electric Car Manufacturing scheme to attract global investment and boost local value addition. Approved companies must invest at least Rs 4,150 crore within three years.

Officials said these efforts support Make in India, generate jobs and firmly place India on the global electric mobility map.

Brooks Koepka Seeks PGA Tour Return After LIV Exit

DETROIT

Five-time major champion Brooks Koepka is set to make a high-profile return to the PGA Tour after formally applying for reinstatement, following his departure from LIV Golf. However, his comeback could come at a steep cost, with potential financial implications reportedly reaching up to $85 million under a newly announced PGA Tour program.

Koepka, a former world number one, joined LIV Golf in 2022 during the peak of the breakaway circuit's controversial expansion, lured by lucrative contracts and guaranteed prize money. Last month, he officially parted ways with the Saudi-funded league and subsequently informed PGA Tour officials that his previous affiliation had concluded. PGA Tour CEO Brian Rolapp confirmed the development in an open letter to fans, stating that Koepka had followed the required process to seek reinstatement.

Under revised PGA Tour policies introduced this week, players returning from rival circuits may be subject to significant financial obligations. While specific details of Koepka's case have not been publicly disclosed, sources suggest that participation requirements, deferred compensation structures, and potential repayment clauses linked to past commitments could amount to a figure nearing $85 million. The program is aimed at reinforcing tour loyalty while creating a structured pathway for returning players.

Koepka's potential return would mark one of the most notable reversals since the emergence of LIV Golf reshaped professional golf's landscape. Known for his dominance in major championships and ability to peak on the biggest stages, Koepka remains one of the sport's most recognisable figures. His reintegration into the PGA Tour could significantly boost tournament fields, fan interest, and competitive depth.

Brooks Koepka moves closer to a PGA Tour return after leaving LIV Golf, but faces major financial consequences.

Olympic medallist Aman Sehrawat connects with Mumbai's youth

MUMBAI

Mumbai experienced a vibrant blend of tradition and modern sports enthusiasm as Olympic bronze medalist Aman Sehrawat wrapped up a one-day youth and akhada outreach tour across the city. The excitement now shifts focus to the upcoming Pro Wrestling League, starting January 16, where Tiigers of Mumbai Dangal (TOMD) will debut.

Sehrawat, a bronze medalist at the Paris 2024 Olympics, interacted with college students and grassroots wrestlers all over Mumbai. He shared his journey from traditional akhada training to competing on the world's biggest stages.

His day started with an early training session in Mumbai, followed by a meet-and-greet at a college in Bandra, where he spoke to young athletes and sports fans. He emphasised that achieving elite success relies on discipline, patience, and persistent effort beyond what is visible.

Mumbai has a different kind of fire, Sehrawat said during one of the interactions.

Texans Dominate Steelers in Wild-Card Rout

PITTSBURG

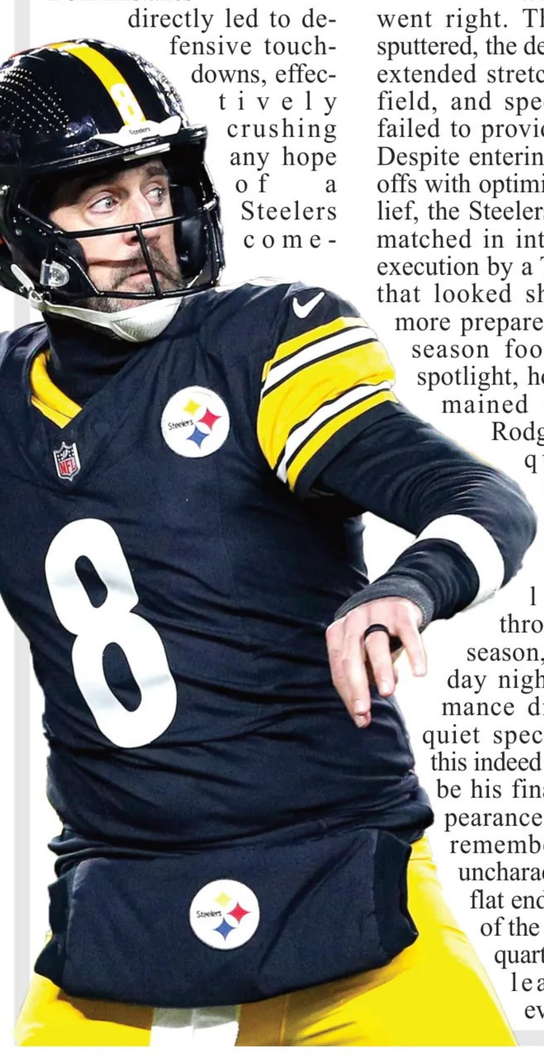
The Houston Texans delivered a commanding performance to defeat the Pittsburgh Steelers 30–6 in a one-sided NFL wild-card clash, leaving little doubt about the outcome long before the final whistle. What was billed as a potential postseason battle instead turned into a sobering night for Pittsburgh — and possibly the final chapter of a legendary career for Aaron Rodgers.

Rodgers, a future Hall of Famer, endured a miserable outing at quarterback, failing to throw a single touchdown and committing two costly turnovers. Both mistakes directly led to defensive touchdowns, effectively crushing any hope of a Steelers comeback. As the Texans tightened their grip in the fourth quarter, Rodgers and the Pittsburgh offense struggled to find rhythm or momentum.

Houston Texans overwhelmed Pittsburgh Steelers in a lopsided wild-card win, overshadowed by Aaron Rodgers' disappointing performance.

The Texans' defensive unit proved relentless, capitalising on every opportunity presented. Their pressure forced Rodgers into hurried decisions, while disciplined coverage limited big plays. Houston's dominance was most evident in the final quarter, when the visitors completely took control, extending their lead and silencing the home crowd at Acrisure Stadium.

For Pittsburgh, the loss underscored a night where little went right. The offense sputtered, the defense spent extended stretches on the field, and special teams failed to provide a spark. Despite entering the playoffs with optimism and belief, the Steelers were outmatched in intensity and execution by a Texans side that looked sharper and more prepared for postseason football. The spotlight, however, remained firmly on Rodgers. At 41, questions about his future have grown louder throughout the season, and Monday night's performance did little to quiet speculation. If this indeed turns out to be his final NFL appearance, it will be remembered as an uncharacteristically flat ending for one of the most gifted quarterbacks the league has ever seen.

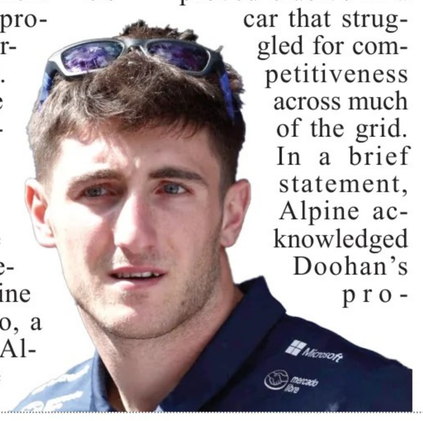


Jack Doohan Parts Ways with Alpine as Formula One Contract Ends

AUCKLAND

Australian driver Jack Doohan and the Renault-owned Alpine Formula One Team have agreed to terminate the young driver's contract, bringing an early end to his time with the Formula One outfit. The announcement was confirmed on Tuesday, with both parties stating that the decision was made by mutual consent, freeing Doohan to pursue alternative racing opportunities elsewhere.

Doohan began last season with high expectations after being promoted to a full-time race seat alongside French driver Pierre Gasly. The move was seen as a major milestone in the Australian's career, following years of development within Alpine's junior programme and strong performances in feeder series. However, his tenure at the top level proved short-lived. After just six races, Doohan was dropped from the race lineup as Alpine opted for a change in direction. The team replaced him with Argentine rookie Franco Colapinto, a decision that reflected Alpine's urgency to improve results during a challenging campaign. While Doohan showed flashes of promise, consistency and points finishes proved elusive in a car that struggled for competitiveness across much of the grid.



In a brief statement, Alpine acknowledged Doohan's professionalism and commitment during his time with the team, thanking him for his contribution and wishing him well for the future. Doohan, in turn, expressed gratitude for the opportunity to compete in Formula One, describing the experience as a valuable learning chapter despite its abrupt conclusion.

The contract termination now leaves Doohan free to consider options beyond Alpine, with potential paths including reserve roles at other Formula One teams, a return to endurance racing, or opportunities in leading international championships such as Formula E or sports car racing. At just 22, the Australian remains highly regarded for his technical feedback and racing intelligence, attributes that could appeal to teams across multiple categories.

For Alpine, the move signals another step in an ongoing period of transition as the team continues to search for stability and competitiveness.

FOOTBALL CLUB DEAL

Manchester United Agree Interim Deal with Michael Carrick

MANCHESTER

Manchester United have reached an agreement in principle with Michael Carrick for the former Middlesbrough manager to take charge of the Premier League side on an interim basis until the end of the season, according to a club source on Tuesday. The decision comes at a critical juncture for the club as they look to stabilise their campaign following a turbulent period both on and off the pitch.

Carrick replaces Ruben Amorim, who was dismissed earlier this month after a string of disappointing performances left United struggling for consistency in domestic competitions. The club's hierarchy is understood to have prioritised familiarity, leadership, and calm authority in appointing Carrick, a figure who knows the club's culture intimately and commands respect within the dressing room.

A former Manchester United midfielder, Carrick enjoyed a distinguished playing career at Manchester United, winning multiple Premier League titles, FA Cups, and the UEFA Champions League. Following his retirement, he transitioned into coaching and later took charge at Middlesbrough, where he earned praise for his tactical organisation and player development before leaving the role earlier this season.

Carrick's return, however, comes with an immediate and formidable challenge. His first match in charge will be the high-profile Manchester derby against second-placed Manchester City at Old Trafford on Saturday. The fixture represents a baptism of fire, with City arriving in strong form and firmly entrenched in the title race.

United supporters will be hoping Carrick can inject stability, tactical clarity, and renewed confidence into a squad that has struggled with inconsistency this season. While expectations will be tempered given the interim nature of his appointment, the club believes his deep understanding of United's identity and values could help steady the ship during a crucial phase of the campaign.

Club officials are continuing their search for a permanent manager, but Carrick's tenure will be closely scrutinised, particularly in marquee fixtures such as the derby.

Tatjana Maria tops Venus Williams in Hobart

HOBART

Germany's Tatjana Maria registered a 6-4, 6-3 win over Venus Williams in the first round of the Hobart International on Tuesday. The first-ever meeting between the two players featured the oldest combined age between competitors, with Maria entering the tilt at age 38 and Williams at 45, since the 1973 founding of the WTA Tour by nearly three years.

Venus has received a wild card entry for the Australian Open, which is set to begin on January 18 in Melbourne. This will be the first major tournament of the year. She featured at the Hobart International as part of her preparation for the season's first Grand Slam, but exited empty-handed after losing in the opening round.

It was the second consecutive tournament in which the American bowed out at the first hurdle, following her defeat at last week's Auckland Classic. Williams will return to Melbourne Park after a five-year absence. Her participation will also see her rewrite the record books, as she becomes the oldest player ever to compete at the Australian Open. The previous age milestone was held by Japan's Kimiko Date, who was 44 years old when she played in the 2015 edition of the tournament.

Williams has won seven Grand Slam singles titles, five at Wimbledon and two at the US Open. She also achieved the world number one ranking in singles for 11 weeks in 2002, becoming the first African American woman to do so in the Open Era.

Her success extends to doubles as well, where she and Serena won 14 Grand Slam titles and remained undefeated in major doubles finals.

The most decorated tennis player in Olympic history, Venus has claimed four gold medals and one silver medal across five Olympic Games, including singles and doubles gold at the Sydney 2000 Games. Despite later career disruptions due to injuries, she still continues to battle for glory.

Government Orders Sports Bodies to Form IR

NEW DELHI

In a policy move to strengthen India's global sporting presence and domestic capabilities, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports has directed all recognised National Sports Federations (NSFs) to constitute committees on International Relations and Make in India in Sports. The initiative supports greater international engagement while promoting self-reliance under the Atmanirbhar Bharat vision.

The International Relations Committee will track developments within international federations, including competition rules, governance frameworks, election processes, and athlete-focused programmes. It will also advise NSFs on aligning international engagements with government policy, the Olympic Charter, and principles of good governance, anti-doping, and athlete welfare.

The Make in India in Sports Committee will focus on strengthening domestic sports manufacturing by engaging Indian manufacturers, start-ups, research institutions, and testing bodies. The aim is to reduce import dependence, promote innovation, and ensure globally competitive indigenous sports equipment.

Officials believe the twin-committee framework will help NSFs operate more strategically and sustainably.

The 35-year-old revealed the decision on a podcast, ending widespread speculation about her future ahead of the ICC Women's T20 World Cup 2026.

Healy cited persistent mental fatigue and recurring injuries as the main factors behind her call, explaining that the physical and emotional demands of elite cricket had taken a sustained toll. As a Super 750 tournament and the second stop of the BWF World Tour in 2026, the competition is set to feature several of the world's top-ranked players alongside a formidable Indian contingent.

Leading the home challenge is two-time Olympic medallist PV Sindhu, who enters the tournament ranked 18th in the world. In men's doubles, world number three duo Satwiksairaj Rankireddy and Chirag Shetty will aim to reclaim the India Open title they last won in 2022. DeRozan, Monk Power Kings Past Lakers as Sacramento Secures Convincing Home Win

CALIFORNIA

The Sacramento Kings delivered a confident all-round performance to defeat the Los Angeles Lakers 124–112, snapping lingering doubts after a difficult stretch and building momentum with a second straight victory. Playing with renewed energy and depth, Sacramento showcased offensive balance and control against a traditionally formidable opponent.

Leading the charge was DeMar DeRozan, who produced an outstanding display with 32 points and six assists. DeRozan dictated the tempo for much of the game, mixing mid-range efficiency with smart playmaking to keep the Lakers' defense under constant pressure. His composure in key moments ensured the Kings maintained their advantage whenever Los Angeles threatened a comeback.

A major boost came from the bench, where Malik Monk delivered one of his finest performances of the season. Monk poured in a season-high 26 points and dished out eight assists, providing scoring punch and creativity that tilted the game decisively in Sacramento's favor. His ability to exploit mismatches and push the pace proved vital during crucial stretches.

Nylander's Overtime Goal Sinks Avalanche

DENVER

A thrilling overtime finish saw the Toronto Maple Leafs stun the Colorado Avalanche 4–3, snapping the Avalanche's remarkable 17-game home winning streak. The dramatic victory came at 3:59 of overtime when William Nylander produced a moment of brilliance to silence the Denver crowd.

Nylander, showcasing composure and precision under pressure, skated down the right flank before receiving a well-timed pass from Oliver Ekman-Larsson. Without hesitation, the Swedish forward released a low shot that slipped through the pads of goaltender Trent Miner, who finished the night with 27 saves. The goal sealed a memorable road win for Toronto and marked one of the most significant results of their season so far.

The loss was Colorado's first at home since October 23, underlining just how formidable the Avalanche had been at Ball Arena. Despite the setback, the Avalanche remain unbeaten at home in regulation time, holding an impressive 17-0-3 record. However, the defeat denied them an opportunity to equal the franchise record for consecutive home victories, adding a layer of disappointment to an otherwise dominant home campaign.

The contest itself was evenly matched, with both sides exchanging goals and momentum throughout regulation time. Toronto displayed resilience and tactical discipline, repeatedly answering Colorado's offensive pressure. The Avalanche, known for their speed and depth, pushed hard late in the third period but were unable to find the decisive breakthrough before overtime.

For the Maple Leafs, the victory represents a confidence-boosting result against one of the league's strongest home teams. Nylander's performance once again highlighted his importance to Toronto's attacking structure, particularly in high-stakes moments. His ability to deliver in overtime further strengthens his reputation as a clutch performer.

Colorado, meanwhile, will look to quickly regroup as they continue their push toward the postseason. While the home streak has ended, their overall home form remains among the league's best. As both teams move forward, this tightly contested matchup is likely to be remembered as one of the season's standout encounters, defined by Nylander's decisive overtime heroics.

Djokovic Returns to Melbourne Aiming to Defy 'Sincaraz' Era

MAROUSI

As the Australian Open gets underway, Novak Djokovic returns to Melbourne Park with a familiar yet formidable mission: to reassert his dominance in men's tennis and confront the rise of the so-called Sincaraz era. An Australian Open title would further enhance his legacy and could see him stand alone as the most successful Grand Slam champion in history. Djokovic claimed his 24th major title at the US Open in late 2023, equalling Margaret Court's all-time record. Since then, the Grand Slam landscape has shifted. Italy's Jannik Sinner and Spain's Carlos Alcaraz have emerged as the sport's dominant forces, sharing major titles with relentless, high-tempo tennis.

The pair represent a new generation defined by explosive movement, heavy groundstrokes, and fearless shot-making. Their baseline dominance has challenged even the most experienced players, suggesting men's tennis has entered a new phase. For Djokovic, now in the latter stages of his career, the challenge is both physical and symbolic. Yet Melbourne remains his fortress. A record Australian Open champion, Djokovic draws strength from his experience, resilience, and tactical intelligence, and few are willing to dismiss his chances of another historic run.

BCB-ICC TALKS

BCB Seeks Shift of T20 WC 2026 Matches from India amid Security Concerns

DHAKA

With less than a month remaining before the start of the ICC Men's T20 World Cup 2026, uncertainty has emerged over Bangladesh's participation following high-level discussions between the Bangladesh Cricket Board and the International Cricket Council. The two bodies held a video conference call on Tuesday to deliberate on logistical and operational matters related to the tournament.

During the meeting, the BCB formally requested the ICC to shift Bangladesh's group-stage matches from India to Sri Lanka. The request was made amid ongoing concerns raised by the Bangladesh board regarding the security of players and support staff. Officials reiterated that the issue was not related to cricketing preparations but stemmed purely from safety considerations. The BCB was represented in the meeting by its President Md Aminul Islam, Vice Presidents Md Shakawath Hossain and Faruque Ahmed, along with Director and Chairman of the Cricket Operations Committee Nazmul Abedeen. Chief Executive Officer Nizam Uddin Chowdhury was also part of the discussions. The delegation collectively reaffirmed the board's position, stressing that their concerns had been communicated earlier as well.

According to sources familiar with the deliberations, the ICC acknowledged the concerns raised by the Bangladesh board but has not yet taken a final decision on the venue change request. The global governing body is understood to be evaluating security assessments, logistical implications, and the broader tournament schedule before responding formally. Any alteration to match venues at this stage could have significant ripple effects on planning, broadcasting, and fan arrangements.

The development has sparked debate within the cricketing community, as the T20 World Cup is entering its final phase of preparation. India is scheduled to host several matches, and the possibility of relocating fixtures adds an element of uncertainty so close to the tournament's commencement. Sri Lanka, meanwhile, has emerged as a potential alternative venue given its recent experience in hosting major international events.
